Instructor Packet

About Arbutus

Arbutus Folk School enriches lives and builds community through joyful, hands-on learning with master artisans. Arts instructors provide our core programming with community classes in ceramics, wood-working, stone-carving, blacksmithing, fiber arts, music, and other expressive forms. We currently have a loom loft, ceramics studio, woodshop, and classroom space available for instruction in our downtown Olympia location.

Compensation

Compensation for instructor time starts at $15/hour and is currently capped at $28/hour. Instructors offering classes off-site are paid an additional reimbursement for the use of their facilities and equipment. Instructional time will vary from week to week, and from month to month according to the artist's availability.

Compensation for specialty instruction is determined by relevant experience. For the following pay structure, please note that teaching experience is specific to arts instruction.

Teaching Experience	Compensation
1-3 years	$18 hourly
4-6 years	$21 hourly
7-9 years	$24 hourly
10+ years	$28 hourly

Specialty instruction may range from one- or two-day classes to 4-, 8-, or even 12-week classes that meet weekly. Courses are often proposed by the instructor and in the past have included subjects such as "Holiday Needle Felting," "Artisan Woodworking for Women," and "Ceramic Bust Portraits." Specialty Instruction also includes recurring staples such as our 4-week introduction to the foundations of wheel-throwing, or our woodshop safety courses.

Scheduling

Our classes may occur any day of the week in the morning, afternoon, or evening. Scheduling is based on the artist's availability, studio space availability, and our sense of community preferences and needs. For example, we have often scheduled our classes outside of typical business hours because we have found there is a greater demand for these opportunities.

Cancellations

All classes must meet a minimum enrollment in order to run and will otherwise be canceled. Arbutus administrative staff regularly assess enrollment and provide timely communication to instructors regarding their upcoming classes.

Joining the Team

Arbutus instructors may be hired as temporary employees or as contracted workers. An instructor may also begin as a contractor and transition to employee later.

“Temporary” employment does not mean that an artist has been hired for a limited duration, but instead indicates that hours will vary from week to week and month to month. The employee may choose to spend as many as 6 weeks not offering classes – such as for a holiday season or travel – and Arbutus, likewise, may need to cut classes ordinarily offered by the instructor in situations such as a pandemic response. Employees receive paid sick, holiday, and vacation time where applicable. Employees are expected to teach on an ongoing basis, whether weekly, monthly, or quarterly, depending on their availability and demand for their classes by Arbutus students.

If an instructor prefers to work under contract as their business rather than as an employee, they must fulfill associated requirements of Washington state law, found here. Requirements will include 1) complete self-direction, 2) ownership of an arts business with an assigned UBI, 3) filing a business tax return, and 4) maintaining records of your income and expenses.

Teaching as a contractor will also be a good fit for an instructor who will teach on-site at Arbutus but is likely to offer only one or a handful of classes, rather than teaching on an ongoing basis.

Requirements

Employed instructors must report their hours using our online timesheets and will be paid within a month of working. Payday is the 5th and 20th of each month. Employees should take a 30 minute break for every 5 continuous hours of work, when applicable. Employees will work with our bookkeeper to calculate pro-rated sick, holiday, and vacation time for their reported hours where applicable.

Contracted instructors are paid after each course based on the number of hours assigned by contract, and do not report their hours.

Because youth may attend any class offered by Arbutus, all instructors must consent to an employment background check prior to joining our team. Non-violent criminal histories are not relevant to our hiring decision.

Facilities Reimbursement

If teaching in your own facilities as a contractor, you will be paid a reimbursement for the use of your space, equipment, and materials. We will ask you to report the following:

- Rent or mortgage, pro-rated for number of class days
- Utilities, pro-rated for number of class days
- Equipment and maintenance fee per student
